

GREYWATER join hands with leading financial institutions

In its effort to revolutionize the wastewater industry, GREYWATER has tied up with leading financial institutions to provide product financing to its customers. The company believes that through financial assistance, it can induce mass adoption of wastewater recycle and reuse practices amongst cash sensitive customers.

According to Arun Dubey, Head Strategy and Business Development, GREYWATER, substantial initial .capex is one of the biggest obstacles for greater adoption of wastewater treatment and recycling practices in India.

“We at GREYWATER are happy to announce financing options for our customers in partnership with leading financial institutions. Through our joint efforts we strive to offer next generation and fully automatic sewage treatment plants at best available financial terms,” he further states.

Mumbai based GREYWATER is a specialized technology company that pioneers the next generation products for sewage and wastewater treatment. With its revolutionary products such as Grewa-R-S, GREYWATER now has aggressive plans to revolutionize the way sewage, wastewater and effluent is treated.

“GREYWATER offers advanced and fully packaged solutions for treatment and reuse of wastewater resulting in substantial savings of freshwater,” states an official from leading financial institution in India adding, “We have full confidence in the capabilities of GREYWATER team to make wastewater reuse a mainstream practice, states representative of leading financial institution in India.

Funded by Nexus Venture Partners, GREYWATER has worked endlessly in last two years to develop technology to make water recycling and reuse possible for every household in India.
